

Get involved with BCS

Develop your own skills, elevate your professional status and meet a wide range of people from across the industry.

Do you have a passion for supporting your peer's professional development? Do you want to help promote professional standards within the IT industry?

You've already achieved a professional standard with BCS. You have experiences and knowledge which could benefit others.

Give back to others in the industry by becoming either a mentor or an assessor for our professional standards.

To find out more and get involved
Contact your BCS coordinator!

Being a mentor

We believe anyone can become a mentor. It doesn't matter which stage of career you find yourself - if you are passionate about helping others.

provide opportunities to reflect and refresh your own experiences, knowledge and skills enhance peer recognition, as well as your own personal and professional development

Being an assessor

Develop your own skills, elevate your professional status and meet a wide range of people from across the industry

enhance your communication and leadership skills

provide exposure to a broad range of IT disciplines

give you useful guidance and insight which you can bring into your own working environment