Opportunity for Future Leaders in Primary Care Informatics to attend the Medical Informatics Europe (MIE) 2024 in Athens

The Primary Health Care Specialist Group (PHCSG) is advertising two £1,750 travel awards for Health and Care Informaticians to attend Medical Informatics Europe (MIE) 2024 in Athens on 25th – 29th August. MIE is the annual European Informatics conference co-organised by the European Federation of Medical Informatics (EFMI). The awards are named in memory of Dr Julian Costello a long-time member of the PHCSG.

These awards are specifically for applicants early in their health informatics career (5 years or less) who should be able to show the potential to be a future leader in this field. Their main interest should be primary care, be they working in primary care, a primary care support organisation or primary care related research, whatever their discipline and however part time. This would include those in vocational training. Other characteristics which will also be considered are:

- Undertaking a post graduate degree in health informatics at a UK university
- A member of the current digital academy cohort
- Working in a Digital Health role
- Demonstrable potential to make a meaningful contribution to Health and Care Informatics

The winning applicants will be expected to join the Primary Health Care Specialist Group (PHCSG) as soon as possible. To apply you need to write a proposal on one side of A4, maximum 800 words, in this structure:

- Who are you, how do you meet the award criteria and why do you want to attend?
- Make clear how are you involved in Primary Care
- What areas of health informatics covered by the conference are of most interest and relevance to you?
- How can you help promote Health and Care Informatics?
- How will attendance contribute to your personal and career development?

Submit your application as a word document or pdf file attachment to secretary@phcsg.org.uk with a copy to john@fairstead.net

The closing date for applications is Monday 8th April 2024 at 5pm.

BMJ Health and Care Informatics Journal Call for Reviewers

Published in association with BCS, the journal provides insight from the industry front line, including research papers and literature reviews. You can find out more here:

<https://www.bcs.org/about-us/learned-publishing/bmj-health-care-informatics/>

The journal is seeking professionals who are willing to commit to long-term collaboration as peer reviewers. Whether you boast a robust history of published papers (H-index > 5), hold a revered reputation in your field, or have substantial teaching experience in relevant areas — we welcome your expertise.

Being a reviewer is not just a responsibility, but a rewarding experience. To show our appreciation for the efforts of our peer reviewers, we are glad to offer a 25% discount on open access charges for those who, within a year of their review submission, present an article as the corresponding author. To find out more please join our webinar on 21 March (see events below) or contact Elisavet Andrikopoulou - elly.an@port.ac.uk

We're also interested to find out what you think about publishing in a journal, and what would motivate you to do so. Please complete this survey, run in conjunction with BMJ HCI <https://forms.gle/tY2DQK7xbRrKdijF6>
